TECHNOLOGY'S WAR-SERVICE LIST

The Alumni Association's Official List of men in Uniform—Sixteen hundred names—The Auxiliary's work in reaching our men in camp and abroad

The following list is the first official record published by the Alumni Association, compiled from the cards sent out this fall, of Technology graduates and undergraduates who are actually in military service, that is, in uniform. Additions and corrections will be published from time to time as they come in. The list at time of printing contains 1601 names, which is exclusive of men in industrial service.

The M.I.T. War Service Auxiliary, in the old Rogers Building, Boylston Street, Boston, has also its own list which it is using in its efforts to keep in touch with all Technology men in service. Corrections and additions to the following official list should be sent to the Auxiliary as well as to the Alumni Office.

The REVIEW is very glad to be able to publish, with this service list, an official statement by the War Service Auxiliary of the use it is making of its records of men abroad and in camps at home, in the hope that Alumni all over the country will coöperate with the Auxiliary in its valuable and essentially personal work.

M. I. T. War Service Auxiliary

In April and May, when large numbers of Technology men were offering their services to the Nation, it became apparent that the need would soon arise of some means of communication with the families of these men; with son, brother, or husband enlisted under the colors there would surely be times when advice or assistance would be needed, when it would be most desirable to have some place to which to turn for that counsel which the men would give if at home, and when there would be urgent necessity of having some known means of information in the many emergencies which would arise under war conditions. Gradually this idea took form, and in July the Alumni Council of the Institute empowered the M. I. T. Committee for National Service to establish a War Service Auxiliary. The Committee for National Service appointed a Central Committee with Mrs. Edward Cunningham as chairman. The other members are Miss Mabel K. Babcock, Mr. Albert F. Bemis, Prof. Henry Fay, Mrs. Harry M. Goodwin, Mrs. Frederick T. Lord, Prof. Harry W. Tyler, Miss Evelyn Walker, and Mrs. Edwin S. Webster.

It soon became evident that in order to reach the families of the men there must be prepared a complete roster with present location and branch of service and the permanent address of all Technology men in service. Today fifteen hundred and sixty names of men enrolled in the army or navy or marines have been assembled. A Bureau of Communication grew out of this undertaking, of which Prof. Harry W. Tyler is chairman.

Through this Bureau of Communication the Auxiliary reaches out to Technology organizations, asking them to undertake the same work for men in camps and cantonments in their vicinity which has been undertaken by the group in Boston. Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, chairman of the Camps Committee, has centered her efforts on Camp Devens, where over 100 Institute men are stationed. Correspondence with these men and visits to Camp Devens have revealed the fact that they are most responsive to the opportunities furnished them to take advantage of the work of the Auxiliary. The supplies of the Workroom are distributed in this way, book boxes are sent to designated individuals or to hospitals upon request. A letter written to Mrs. Hobbs tells of the pleasure of a sick Technology man in the Base Hospital at Camp Devens who called for a book and was brought one of the M. I. T. book boxes.—“Imagine my surprise and joy at finding the name of Technology on the books for which I had asked.”

The roster is extended by the addition of names furnished by men who are known by the Camps Committee. The men who enter service do not always inform the Alumni Office of that fact, so that to a large extent the completeness of the roster depends on chance information gleaned from the men known to be in service.

It has been interesting to watch the growth of the office of the Auxiliary and to see how an ever-increasing number of Technology men find their way there—sometimes to obtain supplies, more often to make a friendly call to make sure that their name is properly enrolled and to tell of others in service, and always they record their pleasure in the confidence that the Auxiliary will stand as a go-between for them and their families when they go to France.

To each one of the men in service has been mailed within a fortnight a little circular, telling briefly of the purpose of the Auxiliary and of the Technology Bureau in Paris, and how the M. I. T. War Auxiliary may be used as a connection between the Bureau and the individual homes. Scores of men have registered the names of their families at the office, and they come not only once but several times to make the arrangements for information or to leave a parting message. To the men in foreign service has been despatched a specially prepared kit bag. These were sent out from the Workroom, the Director of which, Mrs. W. T. Sedgwick, has given a detailed account of the work of her department, which appears later in the REVIEW.

An attractive New Year's card of greeting goes to all Technology men in service, to remind them that those “back home” are thinking of them in this year of struggle and sacrifice.

The appeals which come to the Headquarters are most varied. An anxious father telephones that he has not heard from his son in France for many weeks—can the Auxiliary suggest how he may reach him? He is told of the Technology Bureau in Paris, is given the cable address, and within 48 hours he reports that he has assurance that his boy is safe. A mother comes in to say that she has heard of the work of the Auxiliary and wants to do something for the men who, like her own son, are fighting the battle for democracy. She is asked to sign up on the Workroom, and there she finds others who have sons in the war. Technology men in service come in eager to find which of their friends are registered and where they are located. A graduate detailed to a distant cantonment writes to know how he can meet other Technology men in that district. A man eager to have an appointment as an interpreter comes in to inquire what steps he should take. One man who has only four hours before sailing for France wants to know the best place to buy military boots. A graduate who wears the Croix de Guerre writes from France, after receiving a sweater,—“It is such practical aids and helps as these little things that really count.”

So the work expands—quietly and naturally—as new conditions reveal the need of new enterprise, and through it all is a spirit of devoted service to those who have answered the call for champions of Liberty.
